Staying Connected

Have you ever been dispatched to an emergency scene and been short on manpower because some of your firefighters "didn't get the tone"? This happens all too often to departments all across the country due to many factors including building construction, distance from the dispatch tower, or even the weather. Tone-to-Text was designed to help eliminate this issue by providing a secondary means of communicating with your firefighters via alert messages sent directly to their cell phones.

Features and Benefits

Tone-to-Text allows your department personnel to stay more connected by providing notification of emergency incidents via text messages sent directly to their cell phones. This application also allows for notification of non-emergency incidents such as work details, training, etc... via text and / or email messages.*

"The Tone-to-Text system acts as a redundancy to the county dispatch and penetrates the areas that our emergency personnel would typically not receive emergency tones due to topography, building interference, and shear distance from the dispatch center."
